

SPACE EXPLORATION "Clutter is the enemy," Tracy says. "Create specific places for everything—clothes, linens, and toys—and it won't be a problem." She deconstructed Zoe's closet, removing the clothing bar and top shelf from one side to accommodate an armoire and cubbies.

CURTAIN CALL With the sliding closet doors, Teresa could never access the closet's entire contents at once, so Tracy replaced the doors with two embroidered shower curtains. (They hang from a rod inside the door frame.)

CULTIVATE YOUR VINTAGE GARDEN NURSERY

Pages 154–155: Flea-market table with chairs, $180, Harpswell table, $680, Buckingham glider, $1,240, Bratt Decor Jane crib, $714, braided rug, $60; all from poshtots.com. Dollhouse, $89.95, blocks, $29.95; both from hapetoy.com. Pablo pink blanket (on glider), $118, knit dolls, $34 to $44 each; all from blablakids.com. Flowers crib set; doodle fishkids.com for store info. May tree silhouette by Inke, $299; shoppasparrow.com. Pages 156–157: Organic blanket with ruffle, $118; robbieadrian.com. Pink Twigggy changing pad cover, $24; cadenlane.com for store info. Elizabeth diaper bag, $325, Bratt Decor Jane dresser with changing tray, $1,367; both from poshtots.com. This page: Marcella wardrobe, $1,249; poshtots.com. Blankets (in cubbies), $44 each; cadenlane.com. Bird silhouettes by Inke, $30 for two; rompsstore.com.

"Clutter is the enemy," Tracy says. "Create a place for everything, and it won't be a problem."

MIRROR, MIRROR, FROM THE HALL Teresa had this round mirror hanging in her hallway because she didn't know where else to put it. Tracy nabbed it from there and used safety pins to fasten a bejeweled ribbon to the hanging hardware on the back. To suspend the mirror over the changer, Tracy drilled a hole in the wall, hammered in a plastic anchor, and screwed a posy-shaped pink knob into the anchor.